Halo:A new enemy

Chapter one: A dangerous drop.

As the UNSC _Infinity_ began to crash threw the gateway of Requiem. Generous squad ran across the corridors of _Infinity_ to a near by Pelican in the launch bay. With the nearby EMP from the planet Requiem hitting _Infinity_ and causing her engines to lose power and causing her to crash land on Requiem. Captain Del Rio ordered that we launch ODS drop pods and pelicans onto the planet so we can scout and survey our surroundings of the planet Requiem.

Sergeant Maxwell and the rest of Generous squad ran towards a nearby Pelican dropship. "Lets move marines!" Said Maxwell. The marines sprinted onto the dropship and strapped into their seats.

The ramp of the Pelican closed up as theyan take off out of the launch bay as the ship flew into space.

The Pelican began to accelerate to maximum power to its thrusters as it began heading towards the portal of Requiem. But the mass velocity and mass of the _Infinity_ let her speed pass them and the other launched Pelicans towards the portal.

A few seconds later,The _Infinity_ crashed threw the portal into the Slip-space dyson sphere.

"Brace yourselves Generous!" Shouted Sergeant Maxwell. The eighteen marines in the Pelican cocked their rifles as she cocked hers.

Next thing she knew. She felt gravity pulling on her feet as they went threw the gate to Requiem.

"Mayday, Mayday" Said a voice of the radio comm channels. "This is the captain of the UNSC _Infinity_. An unknown enemy has seized control of the ship. We are without power, and on a collision course on an unidentified Forerunner planet!"

Then everyone heard a blast nearby the dropship. "Shit!" Said a marine. "We've been hit!"

The Pelican began to swirl and swing as the Pelican began to crash in a nearby forest.

"Everyone. Brace for impact!" Yelled the pilot. Then. Everything went black.
